Introduction

The Privacy Policy is a document that describes what cookies are used by our website.

What are the cookies and what “cookies” we use?

1. Cookies are small files that are created automatically when you visit websites. The browser saves in these files information that can be read only by the page from which this file originated. Thanks to this information, the website remembers how you use it and can, for example, properly adapt the content of the page to your browser, device or language. We use technical and analytical cookies on our website.
2. Technical cookies are necessary for a proper functioning of the website. They optimize the content of the website in terms of the browser, system or device used.
3. We use analytical cookies to develop our website, create statistics and analyzes that help us monitor how visitors use our website.
4. We use Google tools, i.e. Google Analytics. For more information on Google Analytics code and Google cookies, please see the Google Analytics Policy on Security and Privacy.

5. We collect statistical data that does not allow the identification of specific users.
6. The cookies we use - considering the storage time – are divided into sessions cookies (remain on your device until you leave the website or disable your browser) and persistent cookies (remain on your device for a limited time or until manually removed).

Storage of cookies
